DAILY PRAYER.

PEACE MEETING.

The churches of the city are to unite this evening in a meeting at the Congregational church to celebrate the great peace victory, which has come to bless the world. The first flush of excitement has passed and the demonstrations have given vent to uncontainable joy where dignity has been sacrificed to all sorts of grotesque performances. Many men who seldom speak have "lanked" up to better express their feelings, and women who for modesty have paraded the streets in the horn braided, yet no enthusiasm has been offered because the occasion warranted the joy expressed. This war is over and the great victory was, perhaps so much to humanity that the wide world rejoices in the advent of peace.

The work of reconstruction now confronts us and while the best brain of many lands is struggling with the great problems of equity and justice, and outlining the new map of the world which the war has made more sure, it is very fitting that the church should present a solid and united front in preparation for the great work just ahead. The boys we sent across the sea are coming back to us full of new ideas, with pronounced ideas on many topics. They have had the hard experience of life and have discovered that men of all sorts of creeds and of no creed, are heroes of the most true.

The war has developed and intensified the faith of the American people, and when he comes home, the citizen of this fair land will face a responsibility such as was never faced before. It will be a liberal and thoughtful citizenship, and the American churches, while adhering to the faith of the fathers, may find it necessary to reconstruct along more liberal lines to meet this new influx of life.

The meeting tonight will be a meeting of praise and thanksgiving for the white-winged dove of peace, which has come to us, and some of the many problems which confront the church will undoubtedly be discussed. There should be a large attendance.

STIFF TERMS.

Germany is now paying the price for the merry dance that the whole world has indulged in and if the price is a bit steep Germany should remember that she started all this trouble. No wonder the German officers who put their signatures to the famous armistice agreement, cried as they did so. No nation has ever been placed in a similar position. Proud and arrogant, unfeeling of the rights of others, selfish and cruel, murderers and wasters, the German army, led by a half-crazed fanatic, plunged the world into a war, the effects of which will be felt for centuries. Today they are humble and meek and the bitter terms they signed is but partial retribution that is coming to them when the final peace comes. A peace that will be lasting and a guarantee that for all time to come "The Germans" will be powerless to do any further mischief. For did not the people loudly say: "We shall rebuke many people, and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." So will it be with the Germans for all time to come.

FIRST EFFECT.

One of the first effects of the peace that is to come that will be felt in Janesville is the lifting of the restrictions of the building and manufacturing regulations that were deemed necessary by the war board. This will mean that the construction of the first unit of the Janesville Machine company, which had been ordered put away until after the war, can be finished, and doubtless the second unit started. Not one bit too early has this work of the housing committee of the Chamber of Commerce been started, for it will be needed shortly. The advent of peace means a bigger and better Janesville in the days to come, and plans can not be perfected too soon to meet the new responsibilities that confront us. In the Chamber of Commerce the city has a medium that can be depended upon to aid in this great work of reconstruction of civic ideals, and already its influence has been felt in many ways. It will become more and more essential to the city as the days go on.

A LIBERTY BUILDING.

It has been suggested that as a memorial for the boys who went across the water to fight our battles for us, a building be erected in the memory of those who fell, a building rather than a shaft of marble. It is a timely thought and worth considering. But why not make this a memorial to the women who stayed at home and worked untiringly? Why not make this memorial building include the much-needed women's rest rooms, the Janesville Center for all the girls to come, it will be a perpetual reminder of the work that was done at home and abroad, and in years to come can be pointed to by future citizens with pride. Let us have the memorial building, by all means, and let us take the steps necessary immediately so that work may be begun as soon as possible.

HEALTHFUL HOMES.

Where movement can be successfully carried through to give wage earners more healthful and comfortable homes, it benefits every interest in that community. For instance, take the results achieved in the so-called "Garden cities" of England. Equally pertinent results could be found in many American towns, but we have not the available statistics of a few English towns that illustrate the idea.

Bournemouth, England, is one town where the idea of healthful homes with open air space for wage-earners was carried out. The twelve year old boys of Bournemouth average to weigh seventy-two pounds, while the weight seventy-two pounds in a nearby ward of crowded Birmingham weigh only sixty-three pounds.

Now what an enormous difference it will make in the future of any town thus to improve the physical condition of its young people. It means brighter minds, more active bodies, more skillful hands. It could probably be depended upon to increase the industrial production of that community fifty to one hundred per cent.

There are few places in this section where a young person can grow up with better chances of health. Still, there are our own faults, and most American towns have grown rather haphazardly. In most of them the building and real estate development has been more to make money than to promote community welfare.

Space for gardens, good drainage, airy sleeping rooms with plenty of window space, these are some of the first requisites for healthful homes. People should be ashamed to cut up real estate and build houses unless these requisites are provided. It may cost a little more at the start, but the results pay many times over in better physical ability and avoidance of sickness.

The socialists who claimed they were going to make big gains in this congressional election, forget that there are a large number of people in this country who know how to read, and who have heard what has happened in Russia under socialist government.

A lot of stenographers have gone to Washington to help win the war, many of them wearing skirts so narrow that they have to take six-inch steps to get across the office.

Some of the slackers who didn't dare fight are now shooting off their hands in hunting accidents, while most of the boys who went to France will come home safe and sound.

Some of the slackers who formerly kicked on having to serve in the army, are now complaining because they won't get a chance to go over.

ON THE SPUR of the MOMENT

JOY K. MOULTON

Maximilian Harden has been one of the few Germans who have remained sane while the epidemic of huffnuzza has been sweeping their unhappy country. No further proof of this is necessary than his latest statement. "We started the war with a dirty trick, and all our subsequent victories have been the results of dishonesty." "William I. is a slimy toad, and Germany a vulgar cinematograph show." "We sit today on the ruin of thirty years of Hohenzollern politics." Harden comes nearer the hero class than any other German we can think of.

OUT OF PRINT.

"I'll stand no nonsense from America. I shall impose my will upon the world." "The giant deeds of my invincible troops." "Before we yield we will spend every drop of blood." "My troops are the chosen people." "The spirit of the Lord has descended upon Me." "I am the instrument of the Almighty." "Disaster to all those who oppose me." "Disaster to all those who resist my will." "No politics in the army." In other words, they are going to take the camp out of campaign.

The new simplified spelling of "debt" is "det." We have often wondered how to cut it down.

HOW OFTEN, OH, HOW OFTEN After his eyes became entirely useless he was given a position in the city hall.—Los Angeles Express.

The difference between a profiteer and a burglar is that the burglar is shot and sent to jail.

THE SAILOR AND THE FLU. "Gum on you, little germ!" Cause of so much deep concern! "Twas you who stole our liberty. Made us stick to the old quinine." "Tis you who spoil our week-end trips. 'Tis you who bring us rube tips!" Keeps us from our tripping dance. Squelching many a grab romance. Source of every sailor boy. Murderer of Old King Joy. May your devilish reign soon cease. So our poor boys can live in peace.—J. B. S.

"Crowing some of the theatres in New England was an act of Providence," said the vaudeville manager. "I should worry," replied the bench actor. "I don't play Providence."

"OLD OAKEN BUCKET?" SURE! IN NEW BOOK

This is Only One Among the Quaint Melodies of the "1000 Songs"

Samuel Woodworth, the son of a Massachusetts farmer, came to his home in Duane street, New York City, one hot July day, early in the last century.

He lamented the fact that he had no water to drink, but the topid water of the city, as ice was unknown as a household commodity in those days. He exclaimed to his wife, "What would I not give this moment for a long draught from the old oaken bucket hanging in my father's well!"

"Samuel," replied his wife, "wouldn't that be a good subject for a poem?" Woodworth sat down and wrote "The Old Oaken Bucket," to which Frederick Scott added music from an ancient Scottish melody.

This song, which has lived for a century, is one of the favorites found in the Book of a Thousand Songs, which this paper is distributing to its readers. Turn to the coupon printed in another column of this paper and learn how to obtain it.

EVANSVILLE WOMAN CLAIMS SHE IS LOYAL

Mrs. Mary Shaw of Evansville has sent a communication to the Gazette regarding the story printed last evening of her being paraded through the streets of Evansville in a cage on Monday. The communication follows:

As you saw fit to print the article in last evening's Gazette without consulting me, will you kindly print a few facts?

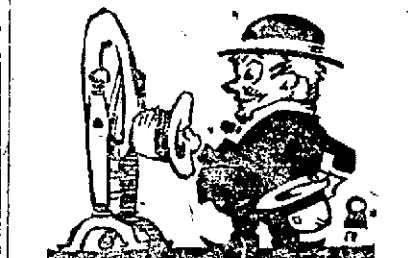

In the first place I am purely American bred, born in Ohio, coming to Evansville at the age of six months, and living here nearly seventy-three years. Secondly, I have never refused to assist the government having subscribed for every Red Cross movement, knit for that society, worked for French and Belgian relief organizations, subscribed and paid immediately for $1,400 in Liberty bonds and bought War Savings stamps. I acknowledge that I did not pay in "Your Share is Fair," because I did not consider it fair. Farms in the immediate vicinity but in Dane and Green counties were not forced to pay any assessment. Why should I? But I did offer to pay my share to the local Red Cross organization. The statement that I refused to go to town and participate in the celebration is absolutely false. I never was asked to in any way, shape or manner. I was prepared to go in my own car which was decorated with the American colors. The statement that they found me waiting for them with a shotgun is false. I knew nothing of anyone's coming until a number of men burst into my house, and I said: "You cannot come in here or you shoot," and I took a rifle, not a shotgun, in defense. The people who came to my house and laid hands on me were Ed. Nance, John Stair, Mrs. Estes, and a man whom I did not know by name. These people forced me into the cage. I did refuse to salute the flag for these persons after the insults I had received from them. No respectable citizen would do so to salute the flag, for they knew I always respected the flag and what it stands for. It does not and never has stood for mob rule. The man who painted my house yellow in the spring and the men concerned in this outrage are all of draft age. If they are so patriotic why are they not across the water fighting the Germans instead of a woman who has lived here all these years, a law-abiding citizen? I do not believe in destroying property in any way. I believe in a happy, prosperous peace demonstration. The chief of police, Gus Jewel, Rev. Minchall, and C. J. Pearsall dispersed the crowd and took me home in Mr. Pearsall's automobile as soon as they saw what the hoodlums were doing. MARY J. SHAW, Evansville.

OFFICE GIRL SPRAYS HIM AND M. P.'S ARE FOOLED

Portland, Ore., Nov. 13.—During the Spanish influenza epidemic here soldiers from Vancouver barracks who were visiting the city had to report back at night for "spraying" unless they got "sprayed" in Portland. And as there wasn't any spare throat-spray of the required variety in Portland most of the soldiers went home.

One of them, however, proved resourceful. He went to a friendly doctor, got the office girl to spray him and then persuaded the fair miss to write on one of the doctor's prescription blanks: "This is to certify that Private Blank has been sprayed in this office." A rubber stamp signature affixed made it "look good," and members of the military police, hunting unsprayed troopers, accepted it and let the soldier go his way.

The Bobbs-Merrill Company

"Pig-headed Englishman, do you think I should ask you to do anything so sensible? Get into these clothes if you don't want to be strangled? Name of heaven, Don Quixote, may not it occur to Saucio Panza to accompany you on your little expedition into freedom?"

"The thing is impossible."

But even in the half-light he had caught the blaze in the usually cold and arrogant eyes. It fired his blood. It was like a blast of northern wind in the feldt closeness.

"It is not impossible. Your friends are here—your mother. There are horses waiting for us both outside the fortifications. Tomorrow we shall be in Oron. God, man—if you had seen her face when I gave you message! Will you let that little woman break her heart over you?"

Farquhar tore off his tunic.

"Who has the watch?"

"Bertrand. He went over to the canteen five minutes ago. As I know, he will not be back yet a while. At the worst we have three minutes to spare."

"Give me that coat!"

Neither man had raised his voice above a whisper. Goetz's laugh was inaudible.

"Ah, das ewig weibliche! Are you ready?"

"Yes."

"Then come."

The iron door swung back smoothly. In the neighboring cell there was a sudden hush; as though warned by some instinct the rough voices died down into a dull murmur, through which the two listeners heard other sounds—a harsh command, heavy approaching footsteps. Goetz closed the door. He set his back against it, and in the pale light falling against his face Farquhar saw that he was smiling savagely.

"I demand a hundred pardons. I miscalculated. Our friend Bertrand has deserted the bottle a minute too soon. It is scarcely credible. No doubt he intends to pay you a farewell call, in which case accept my profuse apologies. Nameless."

"Who goes with Bertrand on the round?" Farquhar asked almost with indifference.

"Harding. He knows. He will do all he can. Be quiet now—they are in the next cell."

The drunken shouts subsided suddenly into a cowed sullen silence. They heard the sergeant's savage abuse, the jangle of keys, the clang of an iron door slammed violently to. Instantly the chorus broke out afresh.

Farquhar came out of the shadows to the corporal's side.

"There must be no struggle," he said. "It would be quite useless, and we must keep Harding out of this."

"Yes, of course."

"You said I had friends here. Who?"

"An Englishman for one, who calls himself Preston."

"What does he know?"

"Everything—more than you do, Don Quixote. But wisdom invariably comes too late in this world. Hush!"

With a roar of laughter the song came to an end, and in the brief lull that followed the two men listened intently. Without warning Goetz wrenched open the door. By the dim light of the lantern falling into the now darkened passage they saw the body of a man lying face downward on the stone. He still breathed. Beyond him, leaning against the wall, was the German doctor. His head was thrown back; they saw his face—a white mask, made whiter by the dark line of blood trickling from the half-open mouth. His eyes shone to meet them with a boyish triumph.

"He wanted to go in—I knew—we fought and I managed to stun him—the road is clear, Englishman."

"Good God, do you think we are going to leave you there?"

"He got at me with his bayonet. It's all over. Go—don't make it all—in vain."

Farquhar caught the cold fast-weakening hand in his. Danger was forgotten in grief and self-reproach.

"Must I bring death and destruction to you also?"

"This is not death—not destruction. It was my chance to make good—He faltered and staggered to his knees. 'Goetz von Berlichingen—I have known always—your highness—greet your fatherland.' He made a last effort to draw himself up to the salute and fell quietly forward.

"You will forget, what you have heard," Goetz said simply. "The road is clear. We must not make the sacrifice a useless one. Come!"

"The sentries—"

"The sentries are the men you saved. The sentries are blind tonight."

She came out of the darkness, a slight frail figure in the big cloak, her hands outstretched. "He caught them and kissed them, and then the white grave face which she lifted to him with the dignity of a great and single passion.

"You had my message, Gabrielle?"

"Yes."

"You understood?"

"Everything."

"The light which shone in her eyes dazzled him. It was supreme happiness, supreme sorrow.

"If there is a new life waiting for me over there you will come to me, you will help me to live it—as you have helped me to live in the past."

"I shall be always with you, Richard. But you must not think of me now; think of your life—for my sake."

An Arab servant brought up the two horses. She drew back instantly, and Farquhar swung himself into the saddle. Preston came up to him and pressed his hand for a last time.

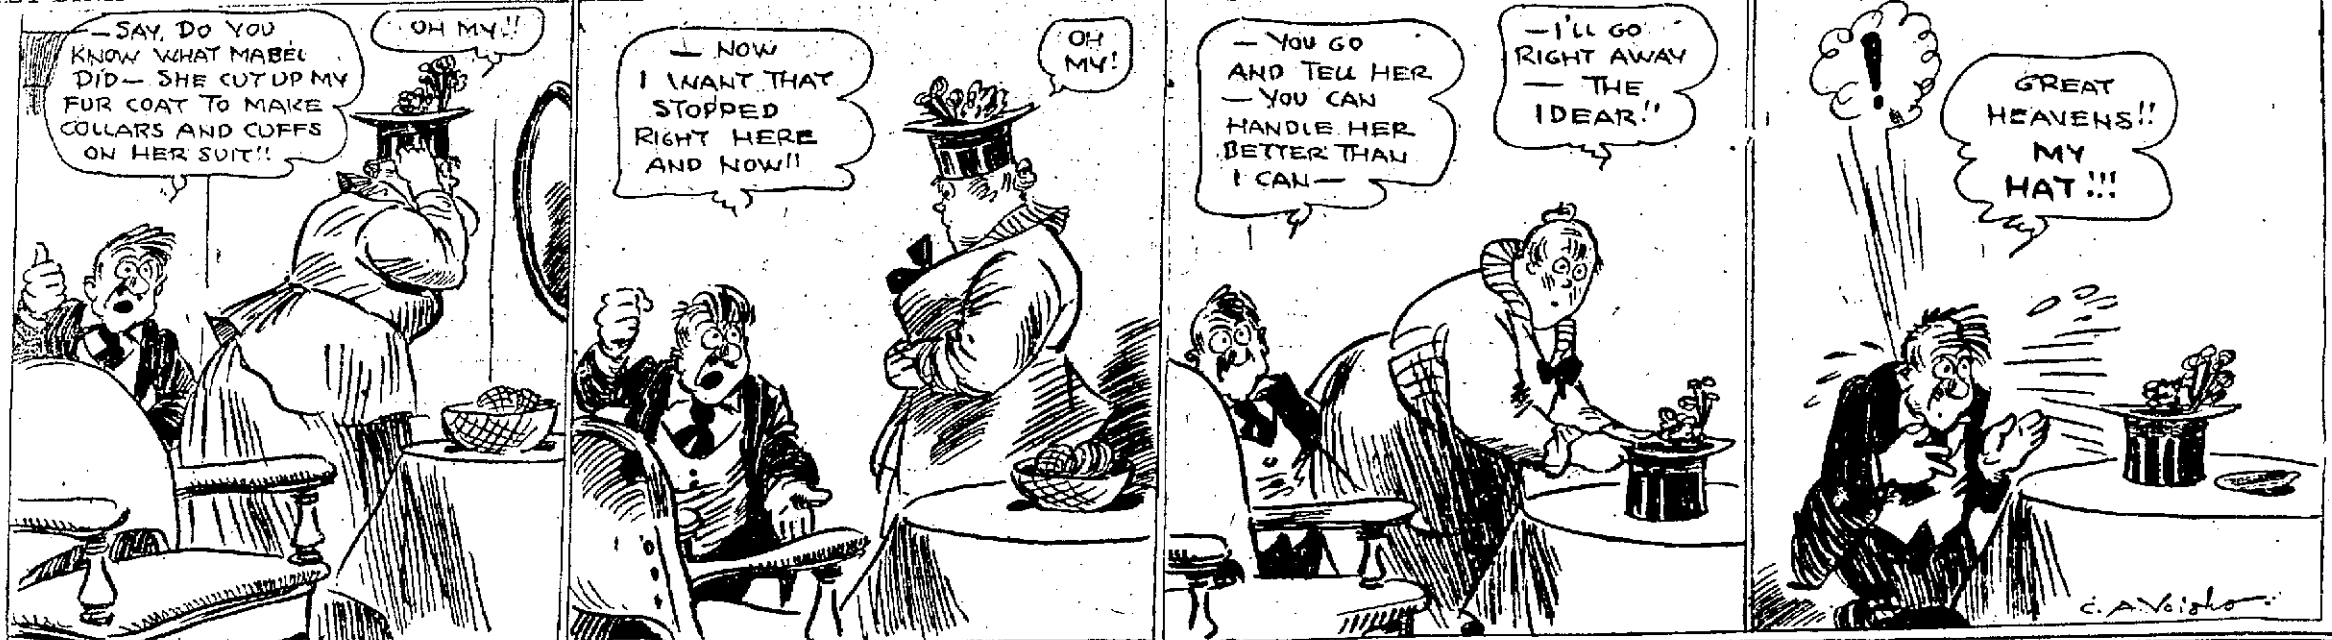

"Our friend Goetz here will explain everything that has happened. You will ride straight to Les Imberts. It is thirty-two kilometers—you should be there before daybreak. Let your horses go. There is a train starting for the north at five o'clock. I shall be on it. We meet at Oron. I shall have passports for two Englishmen—Richard Farquhar and John Eyles. You will remember? Now off with you—and Godspeed!"

Goetz had already ridden out of the grove. Still, Farquhar lingered. Gabrielle had come forward and placed something hard, metallic, in his outstretched hand.

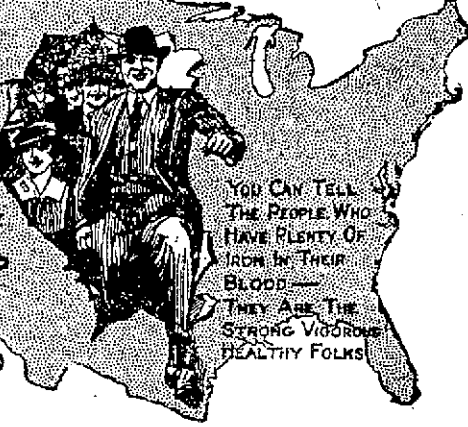

"It is your one gift to me—your revolver," she said. "It is loaded. May it guard you well, Richard."

For a fleeting second he looked down at her. Swifter than a dream he realized his life as he saw it mirrored among the shadows in her eyes.

PETEY DINK—HANG ONTO THAT SUIT YOU'RE WEARING, PETEY.

NUXATED IRON IS USED BY OVER 3,000,000 PEOPLE ANNUALLY IN THIS COUNTRY ALONE TO HELP BUILD UP THEIR HEALTH STRENGTH AND ENDURANCE

Look around at the men and women you meet in a single day. One glance is enough to tell the ones with plenty of rich, red blood, strength and physical energy to back up their mental power and make them a success in whatever they undertake.

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York and the Westchester County Hospital, says that to help make strong, keen, red-blooded Americans, there is nothing in his experience which he has found so valuable as organic iron—Nuxated Iron. It often increases

THE GREAT LEADER OF OUR ALLIES

Our boys are now following the great leader of our Allies "over here," fighting the battle of the United States, fighting without thought of being heroes—but fighting that men, women and children may not be tortured, burned and mutilated. Fighting against the bestial foe of America and mankind. No greater heroes nor braver men ever fought on the battle-fields of France than our "Sammys." Men with dauntless spirits—men of red blood, courage, energy, vim and vigor are needed every day behind the lines as well as behind the guns. You need iron in the blood! Every healthy man or woman should have about as much iron in his or her body as there is in an ordinary "tenpenny" nail. To gain this iron, the best way is to take an iron- tonic, called "Iron-tic," a combination of iron in its most soluble form, discovered by Dr. Pierce and experimented with by his physicians at the Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. Y.

"Iron-tic" is a form of iron readily taken up by the blood, the blood-cells get round, rich-red in color, the cheeks are pink, the appetite improves, and one feels full of "snap"—"pep"—"vigor"—instead of tired before the day is half done. The eyes take on a luster and the body feels that tingle which one gets from a cold bath. If you want to try this new "Iron-tic" Tablet send 10 cents to the Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. Y., and obtain a trial package. This 20th-century Iron tonic is good to do you good. Druggists sell "Iron-tic" for sixty cents.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Kismet.

In the full blaze of the afternoon Colonel Destinn had ridden out of Stibel-Abbes. He had taken three mounted legionaries with him, and they had followed sullenly silent in the low cloud of yellow dust which rolled back from his horse's hoofs. It was now close on midnight.

They left the smooth, white military road behind them and galloped out into the waste—faster and faster—memory hot at his side, its merciless hands upon the reins. The kilometers flashed past. Vineyard and huddled, lightless villages lay far behind in the eastern shadow. There was again a grim un conquered desolation of rock and stone and yellow ever-changing hills. He drew rein at last, moved by a curious pity for the panting quivering animal beneath him. The three men were outdistanced. He was alone, his haggard haunted face lifted for an instant to the now darkened sky. Out of the black night waste a horseman's head appeared.

"Who goes there?"

"Arabs—Arabs—two thousand—you are cut off—Stibel-Abbes—attacked at daybreak."

The reeling horse stumbled and pitched its rider on to the stones. The groom lay motionless. Colonel Destinn turned in his saddle. The three legionaries were already behind him. Their heads were lowered. There was

School-Teacher Needed Brains

"I never have had such a 'God-send' come to me as when I took the first dose of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. I was afraid I would have to give up my school because of severe stomach, liver and bowel trouble which caused such a pressure of gas that I could not use my brain at times, and my heart would palpitate awfully. Since taking a treatment of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy a year ago, all this has disappeared. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One does not convince of money refunded. J. P. Baker, Druggist.

for a moment no sound but that from the snorting, winded horses. Then from the southwest, borne on a gust of the stifling storm, there came a monotonous, familiar cry—

"Il La Ilaha Ilah Allah!"

They watched him stupidly as he turned his horse and rode forward into the mysterious half-light which in the darkest hour hovers over the great African wastes. Silently they rode after him.

Colonel Destinn did not hear them. He was listening to the walling monotonous chant beyond the darkness. As yet he could see nothing, but he knew with whom he had to deal. Lower had spoken the truth. The tribes had risen. And he had said, "Tomorrow you may have no son." That also would be true. The twenty-five years of exile had been sacrificed to an unknown life perhaps already extinguished.

"La Ilaha Ilah Allah!"

He straightened in his saddle. The high-pitched voices were now close at hand—the trained ear measured at most a couple of hundred yards. And the man who had long since ceased to believe in God or devil prayed—

"God, make it not in vain!"

Then he shook the tiring beast into a gallop. The flying hoofs scarcely added a sound to the dull thunder of the Arab advance. Then he was on them—through them, with the hoofs of shouting Arabs at his heels. He bent low in the saddle. And he gained. There had been a diversion. The three legionaries had followed him, and they had been mown down almost without resistance. This Destinn did not know.

There was a narrow passage between the bowlders—room for a couple of horsemen abreast, but no more. If he could reach them there would be another hundred yards gained—perhaps more—perhaps safety. Suddenly he felt the animal beneath him reel in her stride. He dragged her up—another ten yards and she pitched forward, rolled over and lay still. He swung free as she fell, and raced on through the soft clogging sand. But his own strength was gone. This was the end. He smiled grimly to himself.

"If this be the expiation—O God!"

A shout reached him. As the dark swift-moving line of his pursuers broke out from the lingering shadows he turned. Two horsemen raced toward him from the rocks. He saw them through the mist—new enemies—and took aim and fired with an unslaken nerve. As he saw that neither shot had told he cursed irritably. The next moment the foremost rider reached him and swung round in a cloud of dust.

"Get up behind me! Quick!"

Dinner Stories

"Ow are yer terday, Mrs. Jones?" said Mrs. Muggins, from the corner of the very sorry "ear of the death of your husband."

"Yes, dead and buried 'e is, too," said the widow, drying her eyes with the corner of her apron. "Eh! bless 'im, I got 'im a good funeral; 'e ad sixty followers."

"Ow did yer manage to feed all them?" gasped Mrs. Muggins.

"Well, ter tell yer the honest truth, Mrs. Muggins, I couldn't get food no 'ow, 'n I didn't like to seem mean, 'cos 'Emery, bless 'im, was well insured. 'Wen we come back from the 'western an' tells 'em to go 'ome for their tea, and then come back 'ere. So to show 'em it wasn't meanness, I took 'em all to the 'Ipodrome and paid for 'em. Poor 'Emery, it was a grand funeral, but none too good for 'im, bless 'im."

The new recruits were very keen. One man, especially, was everything with energy. The order was given to march. The enthusiastic one, who was in the front rank, set off with a will.

He strode out, arms swinging, head erect, and eyes strictly in front, never noticing that he had left his comrades behind.

The sergeant swallowed hard, then called sweetly: "Say! You! When you get there, send us a picture postcard!"

"Waiter," he called miffing the air suspiciously, "never mind that order now; I can never eat when there's fresh paint around."

"If you'll just wait a few minutes, sir," replied the waiter, "them two young ladies will be going."

When the Skin Seems Ablaze With Itching and Burning

There's just one thing to do. If your skin seems ablaze with the fiery burning and itching of Eczema, real and lasting relief can only come from treatment that goes to the very source of the trouble. So-called skin-diseases come from a disordered condition of the blood, and search far and near, and you cannot find a blood remedy that approaches S. S. S. for real efficiency.

The proper treatment is through the blood. S. S. S. has been on the market for fifty years, during which time it has been giving uniform satisfaction for all manner of blood disorders. If you want prompt and lasting relief, you can rely upon S. S. S. For expert advice as to the treatment of your own individual case, write to day to Chief Medical Adviser, Swift Specific Co., Dept. DRUGGISTS STILL ASKED TO CONSERVE STOCKS ON VAPORUB NEEDED IN "FLU" DISTRICTS

Influenza Epidemic is Decreasing in Most Sections and The Demand is Slacking But We Are Still 18,000 Gross Behind On Orders and It Will Take Some Time To Catch up.

mail to any individual one of these booklets, together with a quarter-ounce sample, free.

HOW TO USE VAPORUB IN TREATING SPANISH INFLUENZA

In every case call a physician—VapoRub should be used only in connection with the physician's internal treatment. Apply hot, wet cloths over the throat, chest and back between the shoulder blades to open the pores. Dry lightly and rub VapoRub well until the skin is red, spread and thickly and cover with hot flannel cloths. Leave the bed covering loose around the neck, as the body heat releases the ingredients in the form of vapors. These vapors, inhaled with each breath, stimulate the lining of the air passages to throw off the influenza germs. In case of head or chest cold, which often accompanies influenza, the vapors tend to keep the air passages open, loosen the phlegm and make the breathing easier. In addition, VapoRub is absorbed through and stimulates the skin, attracting the blood to the surface, and thus aids in relieving the congestion within.

HOW TO USE VICK'S VAPORUB AS A PREVENTIVE

It is questionable if there is anything which will prevent Spanish Influenza, excepting avoiding those persons who are spreading the disease, coughing, sneezing and spitting, by keeping up the bodily resistance by plenty of good food and exercise in the open air. The Public Health Service recommends that the nasal passages be coated with a weak solution of Menthol in liquid petroleum as a preventive. For this purpose VapoRub is excellent. Just put a small portion up each nostril from time to time during the day and snuff well back into the head.

KEEP FREE FROM COLDS BY INHALING VAPORUB.

Colds irritate the lining of the air passages and thus render them a much better breeding place for germs. At the first signs of a cold use VapoRub at once. Melt a little in a spoon and inhale the vapors arising. VapoRub can be used in a regular benzoin steam kettle, such as most druggists carry in stock. If this is not available, a very good substitute to use is an ordinary tea-kettle. Fill half-full of boiling water—put in half a teaspoon of VapoRub from time to time—keep the kettle just slowly boiling and inhale the steam arising.

TRAINING SCHOOL NOTES.

On Thursday the faculty and the student body enjoyed an informal "hard times" party at the Training school. The young ladies had a very pleasant evening singing, dancing, playing games, and the like. The committee in charge served refreshments which were also enjoyed by all present. This social function took the place of the usual Halloween party which could not be given at the proper time on account of the "flu" vacation.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions. Farm Buildings
Help to Win the War

It is just as unpatriotic to do without farm buildings you need as to build those you do not need. Be sure you do neither one nor the other!

To facilitate food production Uncle Sam has ruled that you may build any farm building up to a cost of $1,000, or make any addition or repairs to present farm buildings up to $2,500 (in both cases labor is included) without special U. S. permit. Ask your County Council of Defense.

If you and your regular hands do the work, you can put all the money into materials. (You're glad to know that! It helps a lot.)

The class of 1913 has presented the school with a number of fine new records for the Victrola which are much appreciated by the present students. More will be secured during the year.

New Quarter Begins November 25.
Any persons intending to begin work at the training school will please note that the school will not open until November 25, on account of the seventeen day vacation due to the "flu." Students may enter at that time and graduate next August without serious difficulty. Several have done this way before.

Students Vote.
On Wednesday all of the students voted as has been the regular custom for many years. Parties, principles and the personalities of candidates were explained to some extent before the voting took place. Civics teaching is usually not well done by country school teachers because the young women next expect to be active participating citizens, voters and officers. No doubt a constitutional amendment will change all this some day before long.

Cooking Demonstrations.
The training school would like very much, if it is possible and practicable, as it seems to be, to have all of the warm lunch demonstrations in country schools completed sometime during the present month. It is easy and it is very helpful to arrange a mothers' meeting for the afternoon and to arrange a simple program. Miss Beth Palmer, the instructor and demonstrator, is ready to begin at any time. Send in your request for the service at once, if you please. The training school is ready to give full suggestions and directions for the mothers' meeting. Co-operation of the mothers and the young women teachers is especially needed at this time.

To Entertain County Board.
The training school will entertain the forty members of the County Board of Supervisors and about ten other persons at their annual dinner which is to occur on Wednesday November 13. The Training school board and County Education committee are expected to attend. There will be good music and an entertaining after-dinner speaker. A full attendance is expected as usual. The dinner will be cooked and served by the students under the direction of Miss Beth Palmer.

"CAP STUBBS"

NEW PLAYS ARE CHARMS OF GAME

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
New York, Nov. 13.—One of the chief charms of baseball, according to a famous veteran, are the new plays and situations which constantly arise in diamond battles. It is doubtful, however, if he ever conceived a situation similar to that which arose during the past summer.

It was in the fifth inning, three runners on the bases and none out, when a batter stepped to the plate. Right at his heels came the next player on the list to bat, who took a position just a step or two away from the batter's box. The batter hit a sharp bouncer directly at the pitcher and dashed for first base while all the runners raced around the bases toward home.

It appeared to be an easy matter to throw out the player attempting to score from third at the plate and the pitcher promptly threw to the catcher, who was all set to complete the play. At this point, however, the unusual happened. The man who had been awaiting his turn at the bat jumped into position and as the ball shot across the plate took a mighty swing at it, driving the ball far into the outfield for a home run. Five runs crossing the plate before the ball could be retrieved.

MORRIS MILLER

Joe Guyon, brilliant Georgia Tech athlete, is ranked by many as the greatest all-around collegiate back-and-man in America.

"There is nothing Guyon cannot do," and do just a little better than his rivals," insist the admirers of the great Indian gridiron athlete.

A year ago Guyon was picked by many for All-American honors. Some who followed his performances through the fall season insisted he was even a greater player than his teammate, Everett Strupper. Guyon, with Strupper, made the greatest scoring pair in football togs a year ago and the two of them ripped to shreds every line which they faced.

But this year, Guyon, the only remaining member of Georgia Tech's great 1917 backfield, surely has come into his own. With Strupper, Hill and Harlan gone, the brunt of the 1918 Georgia Tech attack has fallen to Guyon. And the way the Indians has responded in a revelation.

As Guyon, as swift as the wind, a fearless player and possessed of prodigious strength, has been an irresistible force against every line he has charge against. No eleven has been able to halt him. He has punctured one line after another with his plunges, run ends in a bewildering way and handed the forward pass like a master.

Guyon is in almost every play Georgia Tech makes—a tireless worker. When not carrying the ball he usually is heading interference, and when on the defensive, it is his daring tackles that frequently halt attempts of the enemy to race down the field toward Georgia Tech's goal line.

Guyon, who is twenty-four, began his football career at the Carlisle Indian school, taking a "prep" course for engineering work. He is five feet eleven inches tall and weighs 194 pounds.

Fred Tenney, greatest of first basemen in his time, cannot see why base runners, when a catcher tries to pinch them off first with a snap throw, do not immediately light out for second base, like Charley Hollocher of the Cubs did in the second world's series game in Boston. That contest was the first "tittle game" Tenney ever had seen. The play on Hollocher turned the complexion of the lussie and brought from Tenney the information that there isn't a chance in 100 for a first baseman to get the ball to second in time to stop the runner if the runner goes ahead.

"Players used to pull that play a lot," says Tenney. "Why, one of the men who pulled it on me was Jim McGuire, who was able, I guess, to navigate the circuit in some forty or fifty seconds. I got a perfect throw from the catcher to nip Jim off the bag, and made a stab for him, and bit the dirt like Melins did when he graped around for Hollocher. McGuire was murdered by the time it dawned on me he wasn't on first. "It is hard for a first baseman to stop this play, as he has to reverse himself just as a base runner does who is set to go any way and then has to go the other. It is not only hard, it is almost impossible. Strikes me that the players ought to go on instead of back to front."

Fred now is living in Winthrop, Mass. He's a grandparent at the age of forty-six. Since managing the Newark Internationals in 1916 Tenney hasn't had any baseball connections, nor has he desired any. He's a success in the business Johnny Evers was a flivver in—boots and shoes.

Spectators at track meets in France are kept posted of the results of the various events. In addition to the announcer there is a huge blackboard connected by telephone with the men do. Mrs. Ashton Ben-the crowd in attendance is kept well informed.

It is doubtful if any other professional sport can equal baseball's showing. The amateur and college athletes hung up an enviable record that professionals cannot hope to equal, but very few college players are married or have dependents, while the reverse is true in the professional sport, particularly in the major leagues.

In fact, when the curtain was rung down on the big league season there were only a few players who were not in deferred classes, and of those few exceptions the majority entered military service almost immediately.

Tales of the Friendly Forest

Well, that Turkey Gobbler Judge did go for a ride in the "Luckysnow" bite after all. He closed up court and told all the prisoners to come back the next day and get their sentences, and then he put on his sealskin cap and fur overcoat and jumped into the Luckysnow.

"Now, where shall we go?" asked kind Uncle Lucky, for he wanted to give the Turkey Gobbler Judge a good time, you see.

"Oh, any old place," said the Turkey Judge, "I don't care." So away they went, over the snow as fast as a comet, and maybe faster, for Uncle Lucky knew how to run that Luckysnow.

snowbale, let me tell you, so he did, yes, sireenam. Well, after a while, they came to the house where little Mrs. Mouse lived, and as they were all very cold, they knocked on the door and asked her to be so kind as to give them all a cup of tea.

And Mrs. Mouse said she would be delighted, and invited them in to her best parlor, where she had some lovely china vases on the mantelpiece and peacock feathers sticking out and little corner brackets on the wall with lovely sea shells.

"Now, while the water's boiling you can look over the family album," she said, so Uncle Lucky and Billy Bunny and the red-faced Turkey Judge looked over the pictures of Mrs. Mouse's relatives, and didn't they have lots of fun. For some of her great-great-grand-fathers and uncles had tremendous long whiskers and her great-great-grandmothers and aunts had long curls and big breastpins and silk mitts and hoop skirts.

And when the tea was made, Mrs. Mouse invited them into the dining room, and she gave Billy Bunny two more sweet little cakes than she gave to the old Turkey Judge. Wasn't that nice of her?

And while they were all scraping the sugar out of the bottom of the cups, all of a sudden, just like that, there came a loud knocking on the front door.

"Oh dear me!" said Uncle Lucky, "more trouble and then maybe some more!"

"When I hear a knock on the door I feel as if somebody I didn't want to see wanted to see me," said the Turkey Gobbler Judge, "and I'm generally most always sometimes and a half-times right." And then the knocking came again, but a fat, fat and oh, dear me! it was three times and a quarter as loud as before.

"Now wait a minute," said Billy Bunny, and he opened his knapsack and took out his popgun, "if it's an enemy outside in time of war prepare for peace," and he cocked his gun and hopped over to the front door, and squinted through the key-hole.

And in the next story, if the coal man comes to day with a bushel of coal, so that I can keep warm, I'll tell you who was knocking on the door so hard it shivered all the floor and made poor little Mrs. Mouse go screaming all around her house.

Orfordville News

Orfordville, Nov. 12.—Orfordville held a "peace celebration" on Monday evening. After school the children marched with flags and banners through the principal streets of the village, singing, shouting and making in the spirit of the occasion. Later bonfires were kindled, fireworks were displayed, bells rung and amid the firing of guns and other explosives the remains of the Kaiser in front of the depot where they were cremated amid much uproar. At eight o'clock an audience that completely filled the school auditorium gathered and listened to a program consisting of patriotic songs and addresses by Rev. I. Ramsteth, Rev. M. A. Drew, Rev. L. Gimenez and Rev. C. W. Shinsbury of Green Bay.

There was a good crowd in attendance at the Trotman brothers' sale on Tuesday and good prices prevailed. Mr. Trotman's horse and carriage has been spending a few days with friends here.

Warren Casterline departed for his home in Andover Tuesday morning, spending several days here.

ABE MARTYN

"My hens were in a very poor condition," had colorless combs, and were not laying at all in less than three weeks from the time I started feeding them Don Sung. I began to receive a nice lot of eggs each day, and am now receiving, on the average, eggs from nine-tenths of my hens every day. I have a few more to go.

Pleasant, Mich.

People whose hens are run-down and not laying can get them in good condition, start them laying and keep them laying all winter. Accept our offer as Mr. Trotman's.

Give your hens Don Sung and watch results for one month. If you don't find that Don Sung pays for itself and save you a good profit besides, simply let us and your money will be refunded.

Don Sung (Chinese for "good laying") works directly on the egg-laying organs, and is also a splendid tonic. It improves the hen's health, makes her stronger and more active in any weather and starts her laying.

Try Don Sung for thirty days and if it doesn't get you the eggs, no matter how cold or wet the weather, your money will be refunded by return mail. Get Don Sung from your druggist or poultry remedy dealer or send 50 cents today for a package by mail prepaid. Burrill-Dugger Co., 249 Columbia Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

Whitewater, Nov. 13.—Shortly after 3 o'clock Monday morning a general racket announced the signing of the armistice by Germany.
